REFLECTION FROM THE SOCIETY FOR THE PROPAGATION OF THE FAITH

"We are unprofitable servants; we have done what we were obliged to do." (Luke 17:10)

One day, a famous artist was about to go on stage for a theatrical performance and he had the leading role. He was informed that his son had just died. He called one of his collaborators, who was also a friend. He told him with tears in his eyes: "My son has just died; could you please replace me at the theatre?" His friend felt embarrassed and replied: "I would be honoured to perform in your place. But if you reach out to others, you will give them great love and they will give it back to you. This will help you stay strong during hardships." He agreed to go on stage and he revealed his son's death on the evening of his show. People were moved by his courage and wondered how he had managed to overcome this tragedy to bring joy to others.

In this Sunday's Gospel, Jesus recounts the parable of the Master and his Servant. But before doing so, he uses a metaphor to explain the power of faith, however small it may seem, to his disciples who had asked him to increase their faith. The parable invites the disciples to put themselves in the place of an employer paying a labouring servant; this leads them to recognize themselves in the opposite situation. They are simple servants who do whatever they have to do. We then move from the story of daily life to an evocation of the relationship between God and those who serve him. For Jesus, with little faith, his disciples can achieve an unthinkable result.

The theme of this Missionary Month is: "You will be my witnesses" (Acts 1:8). We are also called to be servants in any way, simple servants that do what they should do. The missionary call leads us to others. Despite our cross, we entrust the Lord with our burdens, and we agree to serve as witnesses of love, joy and kindness. Evangelizing is an ecclesial act, said Paul VI, and everyone is attached to the very heart of their missionary undertakings, to the evangelizing activity of the whole Church. Everyone bears witness to the Gospel, to Christ, and offers it in many different ways: "in union with the mission of the Church and in her name" (Evangelii nuntiandi, no 60). May Mary, humble servant of the Mission, intercede for us.
